Using terms such as "shocked" and "embarrassed," the Upland City Council discovered Monday night city revenue will exceed figures in this year's budget by an estimated $531,000.

The council quickly allocated $15,265 to pick up electrical bills for playing fields at eight locations in Upland through June 30, the end of the current fiscal year.

This decision touched off a round of applause from an audience of about 120 — some of them youths in baseball hats — at the special adjourned council session called to review budget expenditures and programs to date.

Some of the council's remarks blistered city staff, and the council met for about 45 minutes in executive session at the conclusion of the meeting to discuss the "city manager's performance."

The council called a special meeting for 7 p.m. April 4 to consider possible use of the unexpected funds. Support was voiced Monday night for restoring hours cut from the library's operations, and council members said community groups denied funding last summer under Proposition 13 would be heard from next week.

A renewed request for financial aid by Citizens for Youth Activities (CFYA) prompted the Monday meeting. Representatives of the youth sports group told the council March 19 electrical bills for the Upland PONY and Colt baseball leagues will total about $10,000 this season.

A revised rate structure is pushing this year's electrical bills $4,000 to $6,000 higher than previously anticipated, according to various estimates.

CFYA was formed last November following a council decision to eliminate city funding for playing field electricity — including lighting for night baseball — as a cost-cutting measure under Proposition 13.

Six pages of figures current to Feb. 28, distributed to the council just before the meeting, showed the city now expects this year's revenue to be $531,000 more than budgeted.

City Manager Lee Travers and Finance Director Anthony Andrade explained that city sale of industrial lots on the Howard Access Road in northwest Upland, increasing sales tax money and higher revenue than expected on invested sums' interest accounts for most of the difference.

City expenditures are also running below expectations at a rate projected at $442,000 by the end of fiscal 1978-79.

In all, staff figures show Upland with an ending balance of $1,487,978. Travers recommended the city retain $1.2 million of that amount as a reserve.

Mayor George Gibson asked, "When did you find this out? I was under the impression all along that we were running into the red, that we were behind, that we couldn't spend a penny."

"Now we have $288,000 (above the suggested ending balance). When did you find this out?"

Travers said, "Essentially in the last week or so."

He said that a review of figures at the end of February showed "revenues in, that we could count on, were just about the same as the taxes amount in total." Revenue exceeded forecasts by 0.7 percent, he said.

That difference includes $219,000 more from the sale for the industrial lots, because escrow had been expected to close last fiscal year, he said. Although shown in the general fund Monday night, Travers said money from such sales is usually transferred to the more restricted-use capital maintenance funds.

Figures supplied to Andrade last week by various city departments showed expenditures projected to run $442,000 under what was expected for 1978-79.

Andrade said after the public meeting this staff review usually is made with preparations for the annual budget retreat, and indicated no one knew of the total savings until figures were compiled.

Gibson said, "I'm surprised and shocked to find out the staff does not know where the city is financially from month to month until a councilman (Bill Bottin called for the review last week) makes a motion

"I expected we knew at all times where we were financially — that's the impression this council has been laboring under," he said.

Several council members were irritated they received the budget figures just before the meeting. Andrade said the document was not complete until 3 p.m. Monday, and Travers noted the preparation included weekend work.

Bottin said he would not attend any other special meetings unless material was supplied in "ample time" for review.

Bottin also said apparent discrepancies between figures used Monday night and those he heard previously left him "really confused."

"I don't know if anyone knows what they're doing. I have absolutely zero confidence at this point in time," he said.

Asked about the executive session, Travers said, "They're discussing the city manager's performance."

Gibson said only that the council held "an executive session on personnel" and declined further comment.

Patrolling Upland

Motor officers hope to curb accident rate

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

In hopes of combating a rising accident rate, Upland police began patrolling city streets last week on motorcycles with a three-officer traffic safety team.

Capt. Gary Hart of the police department said the three officers — Upland's first motorcycle patrol — will concentrate both on strict enforcement of traffic laws and safety education through schools and service clubs.

Upland traffic accidents have been increasing 14 percent each year since 1973, Hart noted. Along with that increase, he added, has been a 13 percent annual climb in traffic injuries.

The city has averaged more than 3.75 traffic fatalities during the last five years, and six traffic deaths were registered last year, Hart added.

Rapid growth of the city and increasingly congested streets has contributed to the climbing accident rate. In all, Upland police recorded 1,074 traffic accidents in 1978.

With such figures in mind, the city applied last year for a grant from the state Office of Traffic Safety.

Hart said the $140,000 Upland is receiving over two years will pay for all equipment, the first year's salary for the patrol officers and half of their second year's salary.

The officers — Lonnie Poe, Larry Mendoza and Rod Lines — have at least two years experience each with the Upland Police Department and all have ridden motorcycles previously in off-duty hours, the police captain said.

Three other officers are being hired to replace them on regular patrol duties.

Poe, Mendoza and Lines recently completed two weeks of training arranged by Police Chief Coy Estes through the Riverside Police Department.

Hart explained that the officers spent the first week learning control and balance of the heavy motorcycles.

They logged some 300 miles in three days of maneuvers about patterns of cones at 1 to 2 mph.

The officers took curves at high speeds for two days at Riverside International Raceway before spending another two days on Riverside streets and three days with their training officers on Upland streets, Hart added.

Patrols began Sunday and Hart said at least one officer will be on duty daily, usually from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., except when it rains. During wet weather, the officers return to patrol cars.

Among the equipment they will carry are battery-operated radar guns to clock the speed of passing motorists while the motorcycles themselves are stopped.

Hart noted experienced officers can usually tell when a driver is speeding, but the radar guns provide a safer method of verifying the speed than pacing the vehicles.

Railsback and Larry Taulbee of the Riverside Police Department, which assisted in training the motorcycle team over two weeks. In an effort to curb Upland's rising accident rate, motorcycle

He added that motorcycle officers have other advantages on traffic patrol over their car-bound counterparts in greater maneuverability and ease in making traffic stops.

They also face more hazards in traffic, which necessitated the training, he noted.

The police captain said "excessive speed" is the No. 1 cause of traffic accidents in Upland. Through analysis of department statistics, police plan to give close attention to locations where the most accidents have occurred in the past.

He added that the motorcycle officers will also be watching streets around schools, noting three children were involved in accidents last year.

Hart indicated the police department is hoping the patrols began this week. Funding was received in a two-year, $140,000 grant from the state Office of Traffic Safety. (Staff photo by H. Lorren Au Jr.)

"visibility" of the motorcycle officers will act as a deterrent rather than relying on a rash of ticket writing.

The officers will be patrolling in plain view, not lurking in ambush with their radar guns ready, he said.

For the safety of the officers, the police department will use no night patrols.

The program goes along with other steps recently taken by the city to beef up traffic safety efforts.

With city and state funds, Upland hired a traffic engineer in a full-time traffic engineering division last year and purchased additional counters to determine traffic volume.

The city council also revamped the Upland Traffic Safety Advisory Committee to deal with requests for more crossing guards in the wake of school bus cutbacks.

Upland planners okay church, preschool design

After reviewing a new location mapped out for a playground, the Upland Planning Commission Thursday endorsed plans for a new Mennonite church and preschool.

Concerns over the proximity of the playground to condominiums on the west had helped delay the request for a conditional-use permit by Mountain View Mennonite Church.

Five commissioners this time voted to approve the conditional-use permit, which will be reviewed by the city council April 2. Commissioner John Zinda was absent and Chairman Frank Carpenter, a resident of the adjoining Mountain Gate condominium development, abstained.

Twenty-five residents of condominiums had earlier submitted a petition opposing the church project on 2.4 acres on the south side of 13th Street a few hundred feet east of Mountain Avenue.

Residents expressed concern over noise from the playground, increased traffic and the project's intrusion into a residential neighborhood.

Jim Thayer of Architectural Concern in El Toro, architect for the project, showed the commission two new drawings giving different locations for the playground than previous plans commissioners had reviewed.

The commission went along with the plans placing the playground just south of a multipurpose building, which will serve as the preschool, and north of most of the parking lot.

Plans once showed the playground 40 feet from the condominiums on the west. That distance is now 120 feet. Homes on the east of the site are 100 feet away at the closest point.

Thayer noted the playground's new location also puts it opposite condominium garages instead of front doors. He added that the wall atop a three-foot berm will place the top of the wall nine feet above the playground surface, which would be out of sight from the condominiums.

He called the plans "ideal" to reduce sounds carrying from the playground. The preschool would operate 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays and state law requires one supervisor for each 15 children during play, he added.

The West Valley Airport Land Use Commission ruled earlier this month the church would not interfere with Cable Airport.

Thayer said the church would be willing to pay the entire cost of extending Pine Street to 13th Street as part of the development. Current plans show the church providing all but seven feet of unimproved roadway for the street.

Commissioners requested Thayer work with the city engineering department to get better circulation for the parking lot, possibly by extending a driveway along the west part of the property to 13th.

In other action, the commission approved a general plan amendment calling for future light industrial uses on 27.24 acres at the southwest corner of Benson Avenue and Arrow Highway and on 1.07 acres on the east side of Claremont Boulevard south of Arrow Highway.

Euclid traffic

revamping plan passes another hurdle

The Upland City Council has approved an environmental report required before the city can receive federal funding toward a $1 million project to ease traffic congestion on Euclid Avenue.

Council members unanimously supported the study addressing environmental impacts on the historic nature of Euclid Avenue at their meeting last week.

However, all five council members balked at going along with a separate recommendation from the planning commission that Upland require "rubble," or cut-stone, curbing for incoming developments all along Euclid as an important historic feature.

Instead, the council said rubble curbs should be required only at designated locations — such as near the Madonna of the Trail memorial statue — after hearing that rubble curb costs at least twice as much as concrete.

In May 1977, Euclid Avenue was found eligible for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places.

This status led to the environmental report, which will be forwarded to the Federal Highway Administration for approval before federal funding.

"Federal aid urban" fund would pay for an estimated $600,000 to $700,000 of the total costs, which the report pegs at $1,041,000.

The environmental report was drafted by L.D. King Engineering Co. Inc. in Ontario. The firm combined with Mohle, Perry and Associates in Fullerton to compile a more comprehensive traffic study of Euclid in 1977 for the project.

Carol Weylan, project manager with L.D. King's Santa Ana office, said the city and the state would evenly split the remaining cost after the federal grant.

City Engineer Fred Blanchard said the project has received concept and design approval through a series of council actions dating back to 1976, but added the project would be back before the council in some six months for bids and formal authorization of city funds.

Key features of the project include improved, computerized signal control, left-turn pockets into the median for traffic leaving Euclid at all 14 intersections in the project area and signals at 13th and 15th streets where none now exist.

Signal systems would be improved at 10 other intersections along the three-mile stretch of Euclid from the San Bernardino Freeway north to 19th Street.

Ms. Weylan called Euclid and Foothill Boulevard the "most crucial intersection" in the project.

Plans show double-left-turn lanes for all directions except for southbound Euclid vehicles turning east onto Foothill.

Only one left-turn-only lane would be provided for traffic turning east onto Foothill because of lower vehicle volume.

A right-turn-only lane for traffic heading south on Euclid from Foothill is also planned.

Henry Mohle, president of Mohle, Perry and Associates, told the council the left-turn lanes at the 14 intersections would serve both as "storage pockets" for turning traffic and "safety pockets" for cars to slow down without hindering the Euclid flow.

In answer to a question posed by Mayor Pro Tem John McCarthy, Mohle said rarely would cars turning left off Euclid wind up "marooned" in the intersection between sections of the median.

The project would also give more time for east-west traffic to cross Euclid, he said.

Virginia Shannon, a resident of Euclid Avenue, said neighbors she has talked to express little support for the project.

"There's a feeling to the street" that is threatened by the project, she said. Mrs. Shannon questioned the need for additional signals on Euclid north of Foothill closer than perhaps every other intersection.

Mrs. Shannon added, "Everyone I talked to said, 'Why fool around with Euclid when the problem is on the east-west streets?'"

Mayor George Gibson noted many residents have complained about traffic congestion, pointing out, "We have considerable traffic now and it's getting worst."

Median cuts into Euclid would measure 10 feet in width south of Foothill and five feet wide north of Foothill. Plans call for continuing three lanes each for northbound and southbound traffic, along with the left-turn lanes.

The median "noses" at Foothill would jut less into the intersection, but the Madonna statue would not be affected. All carotwood trees removed would be replaced.

Plea for mobile home rent control plan denied

By PETER WONG
Staff Writer

Although they didn't vote on the issue directly, county supervisors rejected rent controls demanded Monday by a large group of mobile home tenants.

"We don't support government intervention in rent control, period," Supervisors' Chairman James L. Mayfield of Apple Valley told the leader of the tenants' group, E. William Wolfe of Yucaipa.

If Wolfe's group wants controls, Mayfield added, "you should put it to a vote of the people ... because it's going to cost a lot in bureaucracy."

Not all the supervisors were as adamant as Mayfield in their opposition to rent control. But the board could not even agree on Supervisor Robert O. Townsend's suggestion to refer the matter to county housing specialists.

For more than two hours, the supervisors heard arguments for and against rent controls that would have applied only to unincorporated areas.

But after the supervisors made it clear they would not act, hundreds of persons who filled the 100-seat board chambers and the hallway turned away. Many of them were mobile home tenants who appeared disappointed.

"We don't have free enterprise ... we have a free exploitation system," Wolfe declared as the supervisors ended the debate.

The group asked the supervisors: — To impose a six-month moratorium on rent increases and roll rents back to their levels of June 1978, before passage of Proposition 13.

— To allow rent increases no greater than the rise in the Consumer Price Index.

— To require landlords to rebate to tenants at least 50 percent of their property tax savings made possible by Proposition 13.

— To end the moratorium when the vacancy rate reaches 10 percent. Former Fontana Mayor Nat Simon urged the supervisors to give special consideration to senior citizens who are tenants in mobile home parks.

Simon, who lives in a mobile home park in Bloomington, termed the group "forgotten citizens who live in a 'Catch-22' situation." He said tenants of mobile home parks cannot move as readily as those in apartments when faced with successive rent increases.

Owners of mobile home parks and representatives of real estate associations argued against the controls. They said controls would discourage construction of more apartments and development of more mobile home parks.

"We would probably have a worsening housing situation," Mayfield agreed.

"I can't in good conscience ... support rent control and forever modify the system that has worked pretty well in our country for a couple of hundred of years," Supervisor Robert L. Hammock of San Bernardino added.

Townsend and Supervisor Cal McElwain of Upland said they sympathized with the mobile home tenants. But they said it wasn't local government's problem to solve by itself.

The Legislature is considering several bills for renter relief, among them increased tax credits, a requirement for shared tax savings resulting from Proposition 13, and rent rollbacks.

Supervisor Dennis L. Hansberger of Yucaipa proposed a study of relief measures for areas that are affected by construction moratoriums for mobile home parks and other developments.

He said his proposal was aimed at encouraging more housing, not rent controls, "because I don't propose that we go in and make a bigger mess of it." But he failed to muster any support for the idea.

Owners sought

Upland police are searching for the owners of more than $12,000 in property recovered last week when a search warrant was served at an Upland residence. Included in the property is an AR-15 military-type rifle, numerous tools, guitars, speakers and skis. Chattey child care training for workers

Chaffey College's Deborah Davis and Alice Silverman of the Child Development Department have received an experimental grant from the Chancellor's Office to develop a training course for child care workers.

The course, Child Development 552, will begin April 5 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Art Building, room 15. The course content includes information about self-awareness and attitudes, separation anxiety and dealing with the natural parent, daily routines, discipline and punishment, job responsibilities and procedures in institutions, first aid and the recognition of alcohol and drug use, children's rights and number of field trips to various institutions and group homes for foster children in the area.

Grants to pay for parking fees and registration fees will be provided for eligible

Child care workers are people who work with foster children in institutional and group care settings. Frequently the children with whom they deal have severe emotional and behavioral problems and the coping skills for dealing with these problems are often learned on-the-job. This course would provide some information about this sort of employment as well as a forum for currently employed child care workers to share ideas and experiences.

Chaffey College has the only certificate training program in California for foster parents and the college has now developed an introductory course for child care workers as well.

Other courses being offered by the college Spring quarter which may be of interest to persons working with foster children include: Child Development 514 Special Problems in Foster Care taught by Emery Brewer of the DPSS. Two units 7-8:50 p.m. Thursday, Ontario-Montclair Center. Child Development 515 Infant Toddler Development taught by Susan Kerr. Four units 6-9:50 p.m. Thursday, Ontario-Montclair Center. Child Development 508 Parent-Child Interaction taught by Charlotte Wyckoff. Three units 6-8:50 p.m. Monday, Ontario-Montclair Center. Child Development 508 Parent Child Interaction taught by Jan Moeve. Three units 8-10:50 a.m. Tuesday, Newman Elementary School.

County asks state help on flu shot cost

The board of supervisors has agreed to accept state aid so that it can offer flu immunizations to the elderly and the chronically ill.

The state's contribution of $17,141 will support the program, which is run by the county public health department.

Almost one of every five persons in San Bernardino County falls within the groups the program hopes to reach.

An estimated 133,000 persons are 55 and older; 13,000 more are considered these higher-risk persons chronically ill.

The department's goal is when the program resumes in October and November, to immunize 40 percent of just before the flu season.

West End TV viewers tape now, play later

By VANCE DURGIN
Staff Writer

Television got you down? Tired of the antics of Laverne and Shirley? Had it up to here with reruns of the "Gong Show"?

Then how about a showing of one of your favorite movies, uncut and uninterrupted, right on your television screen? If not, perhaps a favorite program or sporting event from the past will do.

These are some of the options available to viewers through the use of home videotape recorders. West End residents in increasing numbers seem to be taking advantage of them.

The business of selling video recorders for the home is only about five years old, but is already experiencing a boom.

Nationally it is estimated that somewhere between 800,000 and 1 million of the machines have been sold. Marketing figures show that consumers have spent more than $1 billion on video recording equipment and tapes.

Such statistics have not been without implications for the West End.

Item: A store in Upland reports retail sales of between 100 and 200 video recorders a month.

Item: The manager charged with selling the machines at a Montclair Plaza department store notes, "There's a definite market for them."

Item: The owner of an Ontario TV and appliance store says the recorders are a "factor now in the marketplace."

The machines, marketed by such companies as Sony, RCA, Panasonic, Magnavox and others, record and play back programs on magnetic tape cassettes, much the way home audio recorders do. Owners of the machines can tape TV shows while at home or away, can record one program while watching another, or can view prerecorded tapes.

Who's buying the machines in the West End?

"Everybody from truck drivers to doctors," said Paul Bona, co-owner of a shop in Upland that specializes in video equipment. "The spread is wide. From people who are affluent to people who need credit."

Bona reports sales of between 100 and 200 machines a month, most of which he says are to people from the local area.

George Brink, an Ontario television dealer, notes a steady market for the machines. "Sales have been picking up the last couple of years, particularly before Christmas," he said. "This year, though, they didn't drop off as much after the holiday."

Brink says the typical buyer of the machines is 40 years old or less, buys cash and buys a lot of blank cassettes (for recording shows). "Some buy a cassette a week," he said.

"We sell the machines to people with a need, said a sales manager at a Montclair department store. "Firemen and people who work odd hours buy them, not just people with money."

What they're buying is not inexpensive. Prices of the machines start near $700 and go up to above $1,000. A color TV camera for producing home videotapes similar to sound home movies costs about $650 and up. At one store, a blank cassette providing four hours of recording time sells for $24.95.

Films available on cassettes, ranging from "Citizen Kane" to porno flicks, cost from $50 to $100.

Why spend such sums?

"Mainly for convenience," Bona said. "With tape, I control the networks. I can go out for dinner, record a show at the same time, and watch it when I get back. I don't have to arrange my schedule around what's on TV."

Maybe not, but the machines are not without some problems.

For one thing, buyers must decide between two competing — and non-compatible — tape formats. The Beta format (Sony, Zenith and Toshiba, among others) offers up to three hours of recording time. The VHS format (Panasonic, RCA, Magnavox and others) can record up to four hours.

In addition to the format confusion, a lawsuit now being argued contends that owners of the machines are violating movie studio copyrights by taping films and TV shows. Though some experts believe the suit will not have wide-ranging effects (such as making the machines illegal) the outcome remains to be seen.

Another item clouding the future of the recorders is the fact that a competing system — using discs — looms on the horizon. Though the system, marketed by Magnavox, cannot record programs it does offer the promise of prerecorded material at a much lower cost than tape. Movies are already available for the system at prices ranging from $9.95 to $15.95, for example. The disc system, already being test marketed in Atlanta, is scheduled to be on sale nationally by the end of the year. Though dealers believe the system will co-exist with tape, they concede it will have some impact.

"I believe they (the discs) will blow the lid off the home video market," Bona said. "They'll probably be as significant a development as color TV."

Sally Johnson, an employee of an Upland store that specializes in video equipment, shows a sample of the store's wares — a video tape recorder for the home. Dealers say demand for the machines is up in the West End. (Staff photo by H. Lorren Au Jr.)

Freeway is open

A newly constructed section of I-15 between I-10 and Route 60 is now open to traffic. Construction of the $6,125,020 project was started May 25, 1977 by E.L. Yeager. Traffic heading south on the new section of freeway will be able to take the east and west ramps for Route 60. Travelers headed south of Route 60 will leave the I-15 freeway at Jurupa Avenue and use Milliken Avenue south toward Corona. Work on I-15 south of Route 60 has been delayed by a lawsuit over the proposed route. Caltrans expects to obtain a final ruling on the suit in early 1981.

Foothill Firefighters sponsor blood drive

The Foothill Firefighters, in cooperation with the Blood Bank of San Bernardino and Riverside Counties will sponsor a blood drive on March 30 from 1 to 4 p.m. in the firehouse located at 6627 Amethyst in Alta Loma.

This drive is for the residents of the Alta Loma area that wish to donate blood for the community as well as friends and loved ones that may have used blood in the past or will need it in the future. This is the first such drive scheduled in Alta Loma for the year.

Even though this drawing is sponsored by the Foothill Firefighters, everyone is invited to participate. The Firefighters are active in community affairs and have graciously provided the location for this drawing. It is also important for the community to realize that in the past the firefighters have released some 40 of their blood credits to people in the community that had used blood and needed to replace what had been used. Those planning on donating at this drawing should be in good health, between the ages of 17 and 66 (17 with parental consent), weight at least 100 pounds and have no history of hepatitis, jaundice, heart disease, cancer in the last five years and taking no insulin for diabetes. Donors should also eat prior to donating blood and have some means of positive identification with them.

Blood Bank officials would like to remind residents that there is always a continuing need for blood donors. At the present time there is no substitute for human blood. For a person to receive a blood transfusion, it must first be donated by another human being.

For further information, contact the Foothill Firehouse at 987-2535 Byron Morgan or the Blood Bank in San Bernardino at 885-6503.

Alta Loma High names senior honor students

Deanna Boyette and Francine DuVall will share 1979 valedictorian honors at Alta Loma High School and Mark Peters was selected salutatorian.

The three honor students will probably address the graduating class during commencement ceremonies June 13, according to school officials.

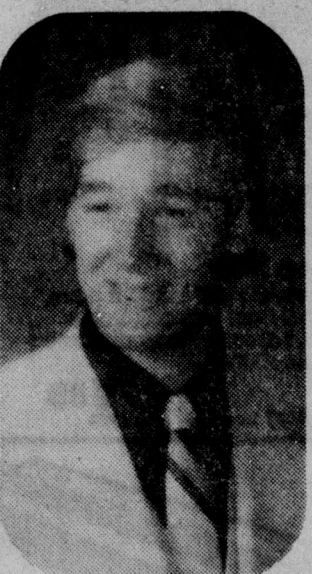

All three students have been active in school and community affairs and have won many awards.

Deanna Boyette

Francine DuVall

Mark Peters

Miss Boyette, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. Boyette of Rancho Cucamonga, has been active in school and sports activities, a member of the Letterettes for four years and a member of the California Scholastic Federation since its formation on campus in 1978.

She has captured several sports awards during her high school years including being selected All-Hacienda League in softball and volleyball and being named to an all-tournament team in the Western Christian Volleyball Tournament. She has won several most valuable player awards in both softball and volleyball.

Miss Boyette has been listed in "Who's Who of American High School Students" and is a member of the American Society of Distinguished High School Students. She is a six-semester scholarship pin winner, is included on the principal's honor roll and holds the Bank of America Achievement Certificate in English.

Miss DuVall is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund DuVall of Rancho Cucamonga and also has been active in school and sports activities.

She has been a member of student government and is currently advertising manager of the Associated Student Body. She is also a life member of the California Scholastic Federation.

For two years Miss DuVall earned letters in volleyball and in badminton. She is a musician who has been a member of the girls' chorus, the marching band and has served as accompanist for the school's Chamber Singers.

She also is the recipient of a six-semester scholarship pin, a member of the principal's honor roll and a member of the Society of Distinguished American High School Students. She holds the Bank of America Achievement Certificate in science.

Peters is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Peters of Rancho Cucamonga. He has been a member of the California Scholastic Federation since its formation on the Alta Loma campus and is interested in music and drama.

He has been a member of the a cappella choir and has had parts in the school's productions of "Fiddler On the Roof," "Bye, Bye Birdie" and "Oklahoma."

He has received the Schola Cantorum award for his work in the school choir and was named to the San Bernardino County Honor Choir.

Peters has been listed in "Who's Who Among American High School Students" for two consecutive years.

Welfare fraud unit increased

Two more welfare fraud investigators have been hired by the San Bernardino County Department of Public Social Services, the first ones to be added since 1974.

The board of supervisors approved the two positions last year to deal with the increased workload resulting from a rising number of cases.

The staff of the department's special investigation unit now numbers seven, excluding

Lapp gets post at ROP

Royce Lapp, former superintendent of Chino schools, has been named director of the Baldy View Regional Occupational Program, which provides vocational education to about 600 students in the Chino, Claremont, Pomona, Bonita and Chaffey school districts.

Lapp's formal resignation from the Chino Unified School District was accepted by school trustees last week. He has been on leave this school year after being appointed temporary director of the ROP.

Directors of the vocational education program have offered Lapp a 2-year contract. He will be paid $30,100 annually, reports Augustine Tapia, an ROP director and Chino school board member.

"Mr. Lapp has been very instrumental in getting the ROP program on a firm footing again," said Tapia. "The ROP Commission is very pleased and happy with his efforts thus far."

Tapia pointed out that Lapp had taken over the temporary directorship of the ROP at a critical time. The ROP budget was cut by local school districts shortly after the passage of Proposition 13.

the recently hired investigators.

The county's welfare rolls list more than 18,000 cases, an increase of 28 percent from 1974 levels.

The department's investigative unit was credited for securing orders in 1978 which recovered more than $127,000 in actions related to criminal charges and more than $250,000 in all other actions.

Supervisors' Chairman James L. Mayfield said the majority of welfare families accurately report changes that affect their eligibility for welfare benefits.

Three percent of the cases are referred to the department's special investigations unit; one percent of those end up in the district attorney's office with recommendations for criminal prosecution.

"It is this 3 percent of the welfare population on which the investigators will aggressively concentrate," Mayfield said.

One successful method of detecting possible welfare fraud is the earnings clearance system used by fraud investigators.

Salaries at issue

Central teachers' talks remain stalled

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

A year after the first proposals were submitted and several weeks since mediation began, the Central School District and its employees are still without contract agreements.

Dave Von Kaenel, president of the Central Teachers Organization (CTO), said 70 teachers attended a meeting last week where the district's latest proposal was discussed and rejected.

Teachers also formed a "crisis committee" with two representatives from each of the district's three schools, he added.

Dave Soden, CTO representative in the negotiations, said the committee's purpose is to put the teachers' case before Cucamonga residents and bring pressure on the board.

Both sides agree that salaries are the key stumbling block in the path toward any contract agreement.

Superintendent Norman Guith said talks are "beyond the impasse stage legally" since mediation is under way, but added the district will continue to negotiate in "good faith" and held out hope for an agreement anytime negotiators meet.

Soden called teachers "very frustrated" and said the board and CTO positions could amount to 9.5 percent over the three years under discussion.

Talks with the district's classified employees seem to be running a similar course and are also in mediation with a representative from the state Public Employees Relations Board.

CTO is seeking a 6 percent pay raise retroactive to last September 1 for the current year, while the district is offering 4 percent retroactive plus 1 percent compounded on that when a contract is signed.

For 1979-80, the teachers' group is asking a 5 percent wage increase along with 60 percent of any increase in the district's "base revenue limit" calculated per pupil.

The base revenue limit is unrestricted funds the district receives through the state and excludes money directed for particular purposes, such as special education.

Von Kaenel said CTO is seeking the same provisions in 1980-81 as it is for the coming fiscal year.

John Tate — principal for the district's "instant school and district negotiator" — said the board is offering a 4 percent increase for 1979-80 along with 2 percent in February 1980 if the base revenue limit climbs by 7 percent.

If the base revenue increases by more than 7 percent, the district is offering a 3 percent increase to go along with the 4 percent scheduled earlier. But if base revenue fails to increase by at least 6 percent, there would be no additional raise.

The district's offer for 1980-81 is more closely tied to the base revenue, which is currently $1,241 per child. No raises are offered without an increase in these funds.

Bargain book buying from branch libraries

You can't buy knowledge or wisdom, but you can buy books that contain both and San Bernardino County branch libraries are selling excess books at cut rate prices.

Each library taking part is free to choose its own opening sale date but most have begun, according to Terry Wold, county library system information coordinator.

She said that once begun, sales will be continuous, with branch libraries offering three or four shelves of books and other library materials which have been withdrawn from regular circulation.

Participating libraries in the West End include Rancho Cucamonga, Montclair, Chino and Fontana branches. Libraries in Ontario and Upland are city, not county, libraries.

Most hardback books will be sold at 10 percent of the list price or, if no price is listed, 75 cents each or two for $1, according to library officials. Officials said children's books will be sold at 50 cents each and paperbacks will sell for 15 cents each.

Recordings will be offered for 30 cents each or four for $1 and encyclopedias, to be sold only in complete sets, will be priced individually, library officials said.

County library representatives stressed that all materials sold are those which are excess or old and have been replaced. All have been marked as "withdrawn" from the county collections and none are gift books.

The sales were prompted by Proposition 13 cutbacks, which slashed away 40 percent of the library system's 1979-80 new book acquisition fund, officials said. They said they are hoping sales of withdrawn books will help generate more money with which to purchase new, up-to-date materials.

Ms. Wold said old materials have always been periodically withdrawn from library circulation but library system officials were unable to get authorization to sell them until this year.

School sponsors newspaper drive

A newspaper drive sponsored by the Upland Highlander PTSA will begin on April 2.

Persons with newspapers are asked to place them in a dumpster in the Upland High School cafeteria parking lot on Redding Way on April 5 and 6.

Money received from the sale of the papers will go toward scholarships for senior students.

"A lot of them gathered dust in the storeroom," she said. She noted a few were given or sold to civic institutions such as the sheriff's department or mental institutions.

Most of the retired books have simply sat idle in storerooms in the past, she said, so the libraries have a large backlog of materials with which to kick off their sales.

Their book sale proceeds

Library officials also stressed that their sales are not connected with nor intended to replace periodic book sales sponsored by the Friends of the Library groups.

have traditionally been used to buy unbudgeted equipment such as world globes, bean bag chairs for children's areas, folding chairs, fees for special speakers, film projectors, microfiche readers, paintings and sculpture.

Man-Caused Headaches Are Children-Caused

By Dr. W. P. Helzer, D.C.

To further the theory that many a chronically recurring headache originates in the neck we have studied headache-prone children.

They all had recurring headaches of adult type without apparent cause.

So many adult patients trace their chronic headaches to childhood and children's necks are subjected to hazards unknown to adults.

Children wrestle and their necks get twisted. Children fall from bicycles on the neck. Children can get hit on their neck with baseball bats and other sticks.

Pain and stiffness in the neck disappear in a day or two and the injury is forgotten. But that slight injury can be permanent and flower periodically into headaches.

The spine has a curve in it, the "Lordotic curve." A twisted neck could lessen or sharpen the curve. Or a mild neck injury could be to the ligaments.

The neck must be considered a prime suspect in every headache case of unknown origin in children as well as adults.

And pain killers aren't the answer for either adults or their offspring.

The Band-Aid approach to the recurring headache problem is ridiculous. Remember, you can't cover them forever.

The third annual Ray Charbonneau Memorial Race for radio-controlled cars will be held April 8 in Pomona.

Proceeds will go to the American Cancer Society. Ray Charbonneau, a radio-control racing enthusiast from North Hollywood, died of cancer in 1976.

The event will take place at the Thorp Radio Controlled Raceway, 1655 E. Mission Blvd., Pomona.

Owner John Thorp has donated the use of the raceway. Trophies and assistance have been donated by the Pomona Radio Operated Club of Auto Racing.

Last year's race drew 55 contestants and more than 300 spectators, raising more than $600.

Participants may enter the event for a $10 tax-deductible donation.

Further information is available from the raceway, 622-6518.

Health Alert: Our savings plan for lives.

You see, at Santa Fe Federal, our interest goes well beyond just helping you save and borrow money wisely. That's why we're sponsoring Health Alert - a community-wide emergency information and medical education program.

Participation for you - and your refrigerator - starts when you pick up a free emergency information kit containing two Health Alert display stickers, medical information forms for each member of your family and a special Health Alert pouch.

At home, putting Health Alert to work is easy. The completed forms go into the special Health Every refrigerator is a potential lifesaver. Yours included.

All it takes is a Health Alert sticker on the outside and a completed Health Alert medical informa-

Alert pouch which, in turn, goes inside your refrigerator - by far, the safest, easiest-to-find "vault" common to every home. Then, one Health Alert sticker goes on your refrigerator, the other goes on or near your front door. These bright stickers quickly alert all cooperating authorities that you're a Health Alert participant and that vital health information is waiting inside your refrigerator.

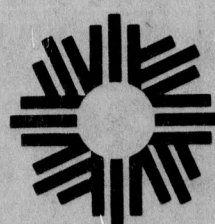

In a real emergency, your Health Alert kit provides policemen, firemen and paramedics with immediate access to your family's relevant health information - including doctors' names, blood types, allergies and other special problems.

And that's important. Because without a word being spoken, Health Alert automatically gives authorities the information they need to give you prompt, proper care.

So stop by any Santa Fe Federal office and pick up your free Health Alert kit. In other cities, programs like Health Alert have saved more than just time. They've saved lives.

And that's an open-and-shut case of the very best kind.

Our interest starts with you.

New Upland church dedicated

By MARGE GROSS
Staff Writer

The dedication mass for the new St. Anthony's Catholic Church, corner of 21st Street and San Antonio Avenue, Upland, took place recently with over 600 parishioners and friends of the parish attending.

Bishop of the San Bernardino Catholic Diocese Phillip F. Straling blessed the new edifice and delivered the homily. As he blessed the new church, Bishop Straling was assisted by his aide Brother Jesus Dominguez.

Participating in the mass were the Rev. Peter Brennan, pastor of St. Anthony's Church, and the Rev. Charles A. Bennison, pastor of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Upland. Seated on the altar and taking part in the mass were 30 clergymen, guests of Father Brennan, from churches of the Ontario Deanery, Riverside, San Bernardino and San Diego.

Following the dedication, a reception and dinner were held at GOSH Pavilion, Claremont, with 250 persons attending.

St. Anthony's Church has grown from a parish of 300 families, when started in 1974, to the current enrollment of 600 families. Father Brennan estimates 1,200 men, women and children attend Sunday masses each week.

When the parish started, masses and meetings of the parish were held at St. Mark's Episcopal Church and Magnolia Park Community Center, Upland.

The $740,000 church was completed last fall and the first mass was held on All Hallows' Day, 1978. The architecture is a combination of Spanish and Italian and features a covered outdoor area where the 14 Stations of the Cross are placed in the pillars.

The Stations of the Cross and the Holy Family figures, which will be placed on the altar when completed, have been created by Betty Davenport Ford of Claremont.

The sanctuary of St. Anthony's seats 375, but has folding wall which can open into a seating space for 400. The altar windows, in a skylight effect, give the congregation a view of the mountains. Many stained glass windows grace the sanctuary. They were designed by Father Brennan.

Blessing the altar at the new St. Anthony's Catholic Church in Upland is Bishop Phillip F. Straling of the San Bernardino Diocese, left, with the Rev. Peter Brennan, pastor of the church, right. The dedication mass was held March 18 with some 600 parishioners and friends of St. Anthony's attending. The parish was formed in 1974, and the new church was completed in the fall of 1978. (Staff photo by H. Lorren Au Jr.)

School lists Hispanic caucus held classes

"The Sermon and the Congregation" is the subject of a workshop on "Preaching and Hearing the Gospel" at the School of Theology at Claremont July 2-13. It is one of 19 courses and workshops being presented between the middle of June and the end of August.

Three experienced preachers will conduct the sermon workshop. They are Buford A. Dickinson, vice president of the School of Theology at Claremont; Thomas P. Grissom, minister of the First United Methodist Church, Sacramento; and Donald J. Shelby, minister of the First United Methodist Church, Santa Monica.

The two-week preaching course, which will run from 1-5 p.m. Monday through Friday, will stress modern communications theory as well as the biblical tradition and will emphasize what happens in the hearing of a sermon as well as the preaching of it.

A caucus composed of Latino Baptist ministers was recently held at the Plum Avenue Hispanic Church. A check for $1,200 was presented to the Rev. H. Oracio Quinones, director of Atlatlan Senior Citizens Center. The center, which serves food for the seniors at a minimal cost, is located in East Los Angeles.

Quinones, after receiving the donation from Chairman Oscar Vega in behalf of Latino Baptist Ministerial Caucus, spoke of the needs of the elderly, asking those present to realize the need to help people in their sunset years.

Invited to participate in the agenda for the day were two local project administrators, Dr. Armando Navarro and Gustavo Ramos Jr., executive director for the Upland Housing Authority.

Seniors center given donation

Navarro, project administrator for Congreso de Pueblos Unidos, spoke about the work being carried out by CPU. Churches were urged to become more involved in the needs of the people. They were encouraged to continue ministering to the spiritual and material needs of their people.

Ramos spoke about the plight of the poor, that there are many in the area who merely exist. Ramos noted the shortage of homes available to the low-income family in Ontario and throughout the state.

Book studies Holocaust writings

A book-length study of Elie Wiesel's 16 major writings on the Holocaust has been authored by philosophy professor John Roth of Claremont Men's College.

Entitled, "A Consuming Fire: Encounters with Elie Wiesel and the Holocaust," the book, Roth says, is an "attempt to grapple with religious and theological questions raised by the Holocaust."

Wiesel's books are among those used in the course Roth is teaching at CMC. "Perspectives on the Twentieth Century: The Holocaust," in which students examine the precedents, realities, and aftermath of the Nazi attempt to exterminate the Jews.

Wiesel, who was sent to Birkenau, Auschwitz, Buna and Buchenwald concentration camps while yet a child, recently was appointed by President Carter as Chairman of the National Commission on the Holocaust. Now the Andrew W. Mellon Professor of Humanities at Boston University, he is author of, among others, "Messengers of God," "Souls on Fire," "A Beggar in Jerusalem" and "Night."

"Of course," Roth says, "I knew about the Holocaust before I read Wiesel, but he makes the event burn inside me. Encounters with God are at the heart of the matter. Not that some specific message of God's is communicated, but rather the Holocaust is a revelation insofar as it lays bare the need to explore Christian faith from the roots up. Life after Auschwitz may well be more troublesome with God than without..."

Fellowship aids CYS parolees study scriptures

Two young men based in a one - time resort on the lower slope of Mt. Baldy are using a unique weapon to rehabilitate youthful offenders — the Bible.

The two are staff members of the Life Bible Fellowship, a nondenominational religious group which has just opened the organization's facilities to six parolees from the California Youth Authority's Youth Training School at nearby Chino.

"They will study how the scriptures can change their lives," said Jim Knabb, who heads the fellowship's prison ministry and residence program. "They will see that crime is an outmoded manifestation of men's sinful nature and there has to be a change of heart from the inside out."

The Life Bible Fellowship, for whom Knabb and his assistant, John Hawkins, work, was co-founded in 1971 by Ray Schmutz, a one - time linebacker for the Oakland Raiders. Schmutz is one of four elders who now lead the fellowship, which has several hundred members who gather regularly to study the scriptures.

Their headquarters, which they purchased in 1977, is on five acres with a hotel and numerous outbuildings, including 54 cottages where the parolees and other residents live. It is located at 2426 N. Euclid Ave.

Knabb's concern with Knabb's concern with rehabilitating offenders developed while he was working in 1977 as a chaplaincy intern at YTS. He found that crime patterns appeared to be perpetuated when parolees returned to their former environments.

He approached the Life Bible Fellowship and urged it to sponsor a prison ministry at the institution. Knabb and Hawkins soon began spending two or three afternoons and evenings per week as volunteers at the institution, conducting Bible studies with wards who were interested.

The new residency program was established recently as an outgrowth of the Bible study program. Knabb and Hawkins began approaching some of the students who were active in the Bible studies to offer them an opportunity to live at the Fellowship grounds for 90 days or more when they went out on parole.

The program is supported entirely by the Fellowship, with no funds contributed by the state. Under the program, wards are provided with room and board along with a $5 weekly stipend for occasional expenses. They are expected to perform various maintenance chores and study the Bible daily for several hours. Strict rules govern their personal behavior.

Knabb feels the new environment, along with the scriptures study, prepares the wards spiritually for eventual success in the community. The program is more than spiritual, however; fellowship members also help the wards with social contacts and leads for permanent jobs.

One of the first parolees to take up residence with the fellowship recently decided to leave and return to his home in Los Angeles. A few days later he phoned and asked Knabb if he could return.

"Jim, I can't stand it here," Knabb recalled that the parolee told him. "The old ways aren't working for me any more."

The young man came back, Knabb said, and is doing well.

"He has undergone the kind of growth and understanding that is essential in adopting a new way of life," he said. "From our standpoint it takes commitment to the teachings of the Bible and that is the basis of the program."

DB church gets school instructor

Adults of Diamond Bar Congregational Church feel uniquely blessed by the caliber of person they have to teach their regular weekly Sunday School class. He is Dr. Ron Hock, noted Biblical scholar and Diamond Bar resident.

His credentials include a B.A. from Northern Illinois University, a B.D. from Southern Methodist University and a M.Phil. and a Ph.D. from Yale University. Dr. Hock has served as lecturer in New Testament studies at Yale Divinity School and is presently Assistant Professor of Religion at the University of Southern California.

Professional memberships include the Society of Biblical Literature and the Institute of Antiquity and Christianity. He is a regular contributor to scholarly journals and a translator involved in the International Research Project on "Papyri Graecae Magicae."

Dr. Hock's first book "The Social Context of Paul's Ministry: Tentmaking and Apostleship" will be published by Fortress Press this year. It reflects his special interest in placing the New Testament in the context of the society and intellectual history of the Early Roman Empire.

The adult class is presently involved in a survey of the New Testament, and members come away each Sunday grateful for their good fortune of having such a distinguished and knowledgeable person leading their study.

Dr. Hock, his wife Carol (also Sunday School teacher), and children Jennifer and David have lived in Diamond Bar for four years. Carol is a credentialed public school teacher who is presently an instructor at Diamond Bar Congregational Nursery School. They are natives of Illinois.

Schools dispute government student loan default figures

By VONNE ROBERTSON
Staff Writer

Officials at valley colleges and professional schools have challenged figures recently released by the federal government on students who have defaulted on loans.

Health Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano recently disclosed figures on the default rate on government funds provided through the Direct Student Loan Program which is administered by the individual schools.

His figures indicated that nationally 841,183 students at 3,151 colleges or universities have defaulted on $702 million worth of loans under the program, which was originally established in 1958 as the National Defense Student Loan Program.

According to the HEW figures, the California default rate was 21 percent — well above the national 17 percent rate.

But the figures released in California have been called "out of date, incomplete and inaccurate" by representatives of local colleges.

Although the list includes valley beauty colleges and secretarial schools, it omits some colleges, including Cal Poly Pomona and Mt. San Antonio College.

A spokesman for Cal Poly said it, by all rights, should have been on the list.

"At one time, we had a default rate of 19 percent, but we've worked hard and reduced that figure by quite a bit," the financial aid officer said. Under the crackdown started by HEW about a year ago, colleges are penalized in future loan allotments if their default rate is too high.

Ernest N. Wilkinson, assistant to the controller at Pomona College, said the figures recently released are "out of date."

The HEW figures charge that Pomona College has 36 students with a default total of 7 percent or $26,506. Wilkinson said the figure is not accurate, is based upon statistics reported last June and collected the previous year.

"Actually, we submitted new figures to HEW in December," Wilkinson added. "But the last information requested by the government was so incomplete that we can't understand how they'd use it."

Wilkinson said the college's financial aid office has been working hard to collect funds.

"We impress upon the students that the money is loaned from a revolving fund. If they don't repay a loan, another student in the future will be deprived of money needed to attend college."

HEW charges that at the School of Theology at Claremont, 12 students, or 13 percent of the loans, are in default for $19,274.

Pat Kramer, financial aid officer, says the school has been very involved in collecting loans. She says that, at present, only three student loans are still uncollected.

"These three — none of whom are graduates — just seem to have disappeared from the face of the earth," she added.

"Sometimes, a student who doesn't graduate feels that there is no reason to repay the loan," continued Mrs. Kramer.

Two spokesmen from Sawyer School of Business in Pomona feel that much of the problem with loan repayments is the fault of the federal government.

The HEW report indicates that Sawyer has a total of 255 students, or 24 percent of its loan grantees, still owing $235,184.

Mary Ellen Lewis, from the school's financial aid office, says that for many years the unsecured loans at low interest rates were "offered too easily."

She added, "The program started after the Russians sent up Sputnik and our government wanted to encourage more students to attend college."

"The loans were made with long deferred-payment clauses. A student could defer payments for up to 4 or 5 years, by continuing at other colleges, entering the service, or declaring a hardship."

"After several years, just try to locate young people in this highly mobile society," Mrs. Lewis added.

"Many colleges entered the program very naively. We'd not been in the loan business before, and didn't know the ropes."

Richard Rogers, the college's credit manager, reports that most colleges now have professional collection programs.

"New policies affect all colleges and we want to get the loan repaid so that our allotment will not be cut by HEW in the future," Rogers said.

"In addition to the letters and information provided through federal loan programs, we attempt to contact all former students to work out a repayment program."

Rogers added, "Colleges must make sure that students realize that the money is a loan, not a grant, and then the school must take all necessary steps to collect the money."

Mrs. Lewis said the problem is compounded by the fact some students also participated in a second program, the Guaranteed Student Loan Program, under which commercial banks provided the money, with the government guaranteeing the banks against loss. Therefore, some students had two loans plus other normal expenses.

Rosalind Gold, a member of Rep. Jim Lloyd's (D-35th District) staff, says there has been a great deal of hard feelings since the list was released last week.

"There is even criticism within HEW over the content and the timing of the release," Miss Gold said. "We understand that there is to be some new information available soon, but no one seems to have a clear statement on the actual figures at this time."

Benefit

The Cow Counties Hoedown Association will hold its annual Casa Colina Benefit Hoedown on Saturday, March 31, at the Riverside Auditorium, Seventh and Lime in Riverside.

The workshop will start at 7:30 p.m., with dancing following from 8 to 11. All proceeds from this dance will be donated to Casa Colina Hospital for rehabilitation work.

Age of college students climbing

The average age of students on the nation's college campuses has been steadily climbing over the past two decades. It's now about 29.

But a new policy adopted by the Mt. San Antonio College trustees could contribute to the lowering of the average at MSAC.

While college officials do not anticipate a flood of applications due to the new rule, students from MSAC District's elementary and high schools now have the option of taking classes at the college.

High school juniors and seniors have been admitted on a limited, part-time basis for the past seven years as part of the College Starter Program. Initiated by the provisions of the Veysey Bill in 1972, the program allows third and fourth year high school students to get a head start on their college careers.

The new board regulation expands the age group to include qualified students from kindergarten to tenth grade.

Juniors and seniors will be included in the college's average daily attendance (ADA) total for purposes of apportionment.

A contractual agreement between the college and the participating schools in the district will specify the reimbursement amount and procedures to be paid to the college by the schools for the current costs of education of the K-10 group.

To qualify for admission to the college, students must have their parents permission to attend classes, the recommendation of their school principals, enroll in a minimum day at their respective schools, and meet the academic requirements for the class to be taken at the college.

The MSAC policy is the result of a new state law (AB2229) which provides educational opportunities for talented students to take college courses in subject areas and levels not readily available at their elementary and secondary schools.

CSF annual installation set

Cal Poly Pomona will host the California Scholarship Federation annual Southern California conference March 31.

Between 900 and 1,000 honor society students and their advisers from 250 Southern California high schools and 130 junior high schools will attend.

Richard Armour of Claremont, humorist and author, will speak.

Cal Poly President Hugh O. La Bounty Jr. will deliver the opening address. The program will end with the presentation of the Seymour Scholarship awards to outstanding senior CSF members.

"Learn from the Past, Plan for the Future but Live for Today" is the conference theme.

Famous Flea Market has something for all

Everything from tacos to valuable antiques will be available to bargain hunters attending the 10th Famous Flea Market April 1 from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. at Kuns Park in downtown La Verne.

More than 5,000 people attended the last event which is held twice a year by members of the Merchants and Businessmen's Committee of the La Verne Chamber of Commerce.

Chamber Director Howard Blackburn said he expects to exceed this attendance record at the April flea market. Although most vendors arrive early to set up their booths at the park, Blackburn said the actual selling will not begin until the 9 a.m. starting time.

Members of the La Verne Fire Department Auxiliary will serve a pancake breakfast at the park beginning at 7 a.m. and continuing throughout the morning.

Blackburn said vendor spaces rent for $10 and several may be rented for those with larger displays. Anything sellable can be offered from antiques to rummage sale items. Unpackaged food items are limited to non-profit organizations. Before reserving a space, organizations should contact the County Health Department for suggestions at 714-623-6811, ext., 540 according to the director.

Because of the recent unpredictable weather, Blackburn said the event

Montclair students will present 'Jesus Christ Superstar' play

"Jesus Christ Superstar" will be presented tonight, Friday, Saturday, March 30 and 31 in the Montclair High School auditorium, with curtain time at 8 p.m.

This is the 1979 presentation of the Montclair High School Student Body, drama department and music department.

Tim Tackett is directing the ambitious production.

"Jesus Christ Superstar" provides a challenge for both the drama and musical departments because of its musical complexity," Tackett said. "The vocal requirements, orchestration and difficulties caused by the size of the cast pose immediate problems, but the students need the opportunity to stretch their talents to help them grow."

This year's production brings the student body into an involvement with the community, as the community-sponsored Montclair Symphonette is the orchestra's core.

"This union of community and the school has proven itself to be very successful in giving each group a view of the talents of the other and in sharing outlooks and approaches to theater," Tackett said.

Gerard Deleuw is the guest artist for the production and will play the role of Judas. He also will be choreographer.

Other leading roles will be played by Hayden Raney as Jesus, Laurie McCullough as Mary Magdalene, Richard Riedel at Pilate, Chuck Rietkerk as Herod, Janelle Molloy as Zealote, Randy Vorisek as Caiaphas, Tony Garcia as Annas and Baron Walters as Peter.

There are 45 others in the ensemble.

Tackett has directed other plays such as "Godspell," "Hello Dolly," "St. Judas Passion," "Cabaret" and "Antigone" at Montclair High School.

Working with the director will be: Mike Kremer, production manager; Doug Romney, technical director; John Wooton, musical director; Harold Barger, vocal director; Dennis Carcia, stage designer; and Michele Wiershem, stage manager.

Ticket information is available by calling the school at 621-6781.

4 performances of Verdi opera

Cal Poly plans 'La Traviata'

Verdi's "La Traviata" will be presented in a full production with orchestra by the Cal Poly Pomona Opera Theater in four performances of the opera on Friday and Saturday and March 30 and 31. All performances will be given in the university theater at 8 p.m.

"La Traviata" is the second full production in the five-year history of the Cal Poly Opera group. After a year of planning, preparation and fund-raising, the $10,000 production will feature more than 30 singers and 50 orchestral players.

Vocal preparation for these performances has been supervised by Dr. Charles Edward Lindsley, head of the voice department at Cal Poly. Genevieve McDowell, lecturer in voice and a member of the choral faculty, is stage director. The orchestral accompaniment, played by the Cal Poly University-Community Symphony Orchestra, will be conducted by Dr. Donald Ambrosio.

Admission prices for "La Traviata" are $5 general and $3 for students.

WE ARE ALL IN THIS TOGETHER

There are many people who are qualified to hold elective office. The key to candidacy is to remember that we are representatives of the people. Election or nomination does not mean that we are now independent operators performing in a vacuum. It is not the size of our budgets but the number of votes that makes the difference in winning or losing. This year the Republican Party is stressing unity at every level. We should not have primary fights. When a candidate has the courage and personal dedication to declare for office and put forth a winning effort we should rally around the candidate and work for the election of that candidate. Any person pushing for a major primary fight at the local level, has to blame himself if his party loses in the general election.

TARGET 35!

American classic

Fudgy Pudding is fancy, family favorite

Chocolate pudding is an American classic. Mothers know it makes even an everyday meal special and generations of children have dutifully downed their spinach in the promise of this treat for dessert.

Hot Fudgy Pudding, a luscious variation on the popular theme, is especially heartwarming on a frosty night.

It's also easy to put together in minutes, since you add cocoa directly from the can (no baking chocolate to melt, no messy clean-up).

Simply combine the dry ingredients, stir in the liquids and nuts, spread into a pan.

Mix up the crunchy coconut / brown sugar topping, cover with boiling water and bake. Cocoa blends readily with other ingredients so pudding should have excellent, smooth texture. And most important, because cocoa is chocolate in a very concentrated form, flavor will be extra rich, extra chocolatey.

Hot Fudgy Pudding (8-10 servings)

1 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
2/3 cup sugar
1/3 cup cocoa
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup milk
1/4 cup vegetable oil
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1/4 cup brown sugar, packed
1/4 cup sugar

1 package (about 3/4 ounces) vanilla pudding and pie filling mix
3/4 cup flaked coconut
1 1/2 cups boiling water

Grease one 8-inch square pan or one 1 1/4-quart shallow baking dish. Combine flour, 2/3 cup sugar, cocoa, baking powder and salt in large bowl. Combine milk, oil and vanilla; blend into dry ingredients. Stir in nuts. Spread batter in pan. Combine brown sugar, 1/4 cup sugar, pudding mix and coconut; sprinkle on top of batter. Carefully pour boiling water over mixture. Do not stir. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Cool 10 minutes; serve warm, with whipped cream or vanilla ice cream is desired.

Piping hot Fudgy Pudding is an American classic among desserts. The kids love it and will down the spinach in anticipation of the pudding. Served hot, it's great for a chilly, damp night.

Avoid the fad diets

The Scarsdale diet currently in vogue, is simply a new variation on the low carbohydrate diets that have been around for decades, according to the California Dietetic

Association (CDA), Inland Empire District. And like its predecessors, it is nutritionally unbalanced and generally unsuccessful. While the promised weight loss of up to 14 pounds in two weeks may be achieved, the bulk of that weight is water and will be regained within days after normal eating is resumed, the CDA says.

Dieting, unfortunately, is not a two - week proposition.

Nation's first

N.Y. live-in hospital plan set

NEW YORK (UPI) — The nation's first hospital Cooperative Care Unit with relatives "living in" to help care for patients will open April 11 at New York University Medical Center with a reduction of as much as 40 percent in hospital bills.

The reductions will come both from the unique live-in plan for relatives and from other cost-cutting steps, university officials said.

The announcement of the pioneering program against ballooning hospital bills was made jointly by Dr. John C. Sawhill, university president; Dr. Ivan L. Bennett, Medical Center dean, and Irvin C. Wilmut, executive vice president of the Medical Center.

It is expected that the Cooperative Care Unit will reduce the need for medical supervision, professional nursing and health care technicians, the announcement said, and additional savings will be realized by eliminating the need for medical equipment installation in each room.

Admission to the unit in the new $24.5-million Arnold and Marie Schwartz Health Care Center will be by transfer from University Hospital or an acute care facility.

"New York University is not simply opening the doors to a new medical facility," Sawhill said.

"We are joining in a struggle to reduce hospital costs, to take the threat of illness — and its expense — out of old age, to reduce its impact on the poor and those of moderate incomes and to protect against life-long savings being wiped out due to an extended illness."

While the Carter

administration's proposal to hold hospital expenses to a growth of 9.7 percent a year) deals with limited inflation, we in the private sector are taking more creative and cost-effective actions to reduce patient cost in acute care facilities by 40 percent."

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Greater New York will reimburse the Cooperative Care unit for a five-year trial period, according to "Blues" executive vice president D. Eugene Sibery.

Spring heralds joyful 'festival of festivals'

Spring marks one of the most joyful holidays on the Jewish calendar — Passover, or Pesach, a word sometimes translated as "festival of festivals." Celebrating the liberation of the Israelites from bondage in Egypt, it is a time of great warmth and hospitality.

Since Passover lasts for eight days, there is ample opportunity to enjoy entertaining family and friends. And on occasions from the ceremonial Seder to the many casual visits exchanged during the season, food has a prominent place in the celebration.

Invite guests to share a convivial evening in your home. Along with a steaming pot of tea and cups of rich coffee, serve our marvelous desserts and then savor the gusto with which friends fork in.

Actually, our Passover Grapefruit Latkes may also be offered as a luncheon main dish, so satisfying they are. Although latkes are traditionally made with potato meal, these lovely little pancakes call for matzoh meal, which has special significance on the holiday that commemorates the flight of the Israelites before their leavened bread had time to rise. That's not the only difference, though. Bite into the latkes and you'll find ground nuts and a remarkable flavor that comes from the Florida grapefruit juice used as the liquid in the batter.

Top them with Spicy Grapefruit Sauce — golden fresh citrus sections shimmering in a lively syrup. We doubt that there will be many left over, but if there are, they may be reheated and enjoyed for breakfast the next day. The busy host or hostess might also prepare the latkes ahead and reheat them just before serving to save time better spent with guests.

Equally festive are our Passover Orange Fritters. Many Jewish people cherish childhood memories of the fresh whole oranges served at the holiday, and these treats are likely to evoke future nostalgia in today's children. Fresh orange sections wrapped in a crisp sweet batter, then honey-dipped or sugar-dusted, the fritters may well become the newest Passover tradition in your home.

Passover Orange Fritters
3 eggs, separated
3 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon salt

1 cup matzoh cake meal
1 cup Florida orange juice
3 Florida oranges, peeled, pulled apart in sections with membrane
Vegetable oil for frying
Confectioners' sugar or honey

In medium bowl, beat egg yolks with rotary beater until light. Beat in sugar, cinnamon and salt. Add matzoh cake meal alternately with orange juice, beating until smooth. Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry; beat 1/4 of egg whites into yolk mixture fold remaining whites into batter. Dip orange sections, one at a time, into the batter. Heat 2 inches oil in saucepan or deep fat fryer. Drop orange sections in hot fat (325 degrees F.) Brown on all sides, about 4 minutes. Repeat until all batter and oranges are used. Drain on paper towel. To serve, sprinkle with confectioners' sugar or dip into honey, if desired. Yield: 30 fritters.

Passover Grapefruit Latkes
4 eggs, separated
3/4 cup matzoh meal
1/4 cup chopped almonds, walnuts or pecans

Decorating tips

Pretty eggs for holidays

All ancient cultures have legends of creation. That the world began with the "cosmic egg" is a thread running through the myths of such widely scattered cultures as the Hindus, the Chinese, the Egyptians, the Phoenicians and the Filipinos, as well as our nearer neighbors, the American Indians and the Finns.

Small wonder, then, that the spring season is characterized by this ancient symbol of creation — from the ritual egg of the Jewish Passover to the exquisitely decorated Easter eggs of the eastern Europeans.

Decorating eggs can be a family affair, fun for grown-ups as well as for kids, and for neighbors of whatever persuasion. There is literally no end to the creative possibilities for individual expression. Eggs can be painted, turned into funny faces, topped with fantastic hats, trimmed with feathers, sequins or what.

The Mrs. Smith's versions were helped immensely by ideas found in magazines and library books if you're lacking in inspiration. Ethnic groups, which have developed egg decorating into a fine art form passed down from generation to generation, sometimes have special displays at museums or churches, making an interesting field trip for groups or families. If this is not a possibility in your area, you might initiate a local display or a contest through Scout groups or other neighborhood organizations.

Eggs to be decorated may be either hard - cooked or blown out of their shells. The hard - cooked variety is a bit more sturdy for children to work with, while the blown shells are best if you're making an egg tree or want to keep the eggs on display for a considerable time.

If you blow eggs out of their shells, be sure to keep count and label the containers with the number of eggs so they can be used in cookies, cakes, breads, custards, quiches and other fully-cooked egg dishes. Of course, it's necessary to refrigerate these liquid eggs as soon as they are blown out and best to use them within a day or two.

If the eggs are hard - cooked, be sure to refrigerate them until decorating time unless they're decorated immediately after cooking. Their delicate flavor is best when they are fresh. After all your work to color them, you'll want them to taste delicious, too!

Easter egg time nears

As soon as the Easter festivities are over, gather up your decorated eggs and put them into the refrigerator to preserve their flavor and keep them fresh. Use them whole for snacks or chopped or sliced in casseroles, salads and sandwiches during the next few days.

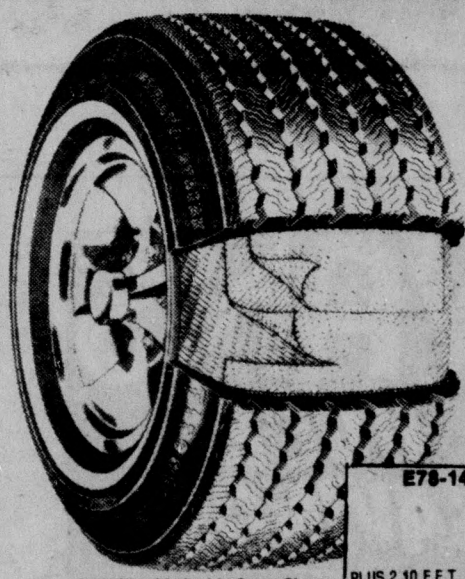

If you're cooking eggs to color this Easter, you can usually avoid cracked shells by piercing the large end of the egg with a pin or a thumb tack. This helps release the air pressure which may build up inside the shell when the egg gets hot. Coloring eggs in the springtime is a very old custom dating back thousands of years to the ancient Egyptians, Persians and Chinese. They, too, dyed eggs, then either ate them or exchanged them with friends — much as we do today.

According to an old superstition, an egg laid on Good Friday would keep for a year! Today we know that eggs taste better and stay much fresher when they're refrigerated.

Volunteers to tape books

Engineers, physicians and college instructors have volunteered their services to tape books for the Pomona Valley Unit, Recording for the Blind Inc. Mrs. LaVere Flora, president, announced the response by these individuals as textbook readers for the organization which supplies taped books for visually handicapped students.

Seven General Dynamics' engineers, ten college instructors and four Kaiser Foundation physicians will be recording. There was a special need for individuals to record a 1,200-page textbook.

To accommodate the new recruits, Mrs. Flora said, the studio, in the basement of McAlister Center, Claremont, will be in operation four evenings each week, Monday through Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m., in addition to the weekday hours of 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Volunteers Recognition Tea and installation of officers will be held Sunday, June 3, at 3 p.m. at McAlister Center. The studio will be open so visitors may tour the facility and observe it in operation.

Officers to be installed at that time will be: Mrs. Flora president; Mrs. Leonard Munter, vice president; Mrs. A.E.

Stoddard Jr., secretary; and Robert Harper, treasurer.

Retiring from the board after many years of service are Mari Summerville, Barbara Sargent and Helen Maher.

Mrs. Flora reports that the New York City headquarters of the Recording for the Blind has extended all services to include learning disabled students in addition to the visually handicapped.

The local studio now duplicates and mails 150 student tapes each month. Production at the McAlister Center studio has increased 8.8 percent in the past year, Mrs. Flora said.

A.L. High Riding Club

30 join in trail ride

More than 30 teachers, students, and parents participated in the Alta Loma Junior High School Riding Club's Trail Ride. The excursion, organized by club sponsors Mary Miles and Cindy Roberts, was in the foothills of Alta Loma.

Fortunately, the group chose a beautiful day to gather for the big ride. With the sun shining and the countryside looking great from recent rains the equestrians followed old trails and forged new ones.

Meeting the travelers at lunch with soft drinks were Principal James E. Dyer and Assistant Principal Gary W. Hall.

The Alta Loma Junior High School Riding Club is an active group at the school. After a recent special foods sale success the members are planning a community fair ride competition. It is hoped that all Alta Lomans will get involved. If you have questions or suggestions or can offer volunteer help, call the school at 987-4644 and speak to the club advisors.

Fido's license

Local dog owners' fees raised

The cost of Fido's dog license has gone up in the West End.

City councils in Ontario, Montclair, Rancho Cucamonga and Chino have given final approval to establishing unified, consistent dog license fees.

The fee increases are necessary to cover increased operating costs of the Humane Society of the Chaffey Community, Inc., the city councils were told.

Rate increases, as proposed by the humane society, are:

- From $8 to $10 to license dogs.
- From $4 to $5 for spayed or neutered dogs.
- A late license fee increase from $4 to $5.

The new ordinance provides for a 50 percent reduction in the cost to license dogs owned by senior citizens. Seniors will not receive a break on the penalty for failing to renew the dog's license 30 days after it is due, however.

The humane society's last fee increase was in 1975, according to officials.

"We are one of the few humane societies I know of entirely unsubsidized by taxes," said Cass Schreib, general manager of the humane society.

The addition of Rancho Cucamonga to the animal shelter's responsibility has increased the work load and the number of personnel needed, Schreib said.

The fees had not been consistent in the four West End cities, all served by the humane society.

The new ordinance also imposes a $7 fine on owners whose dogs are picked up without a license. The fine is $10 for the second offense and $15 for the third and each recurring offense.

A boarding fee of $1.50 will be charged for each day the dog is impounded.
